BORTH BOYS. - Out of the great number of Borth boys in the service of their country in the mercantile marine, navy, and army, not one up to the present has been killed, though some of them have had terrible experiences and hair breadth escapes. Amidst falling shells, bombs, and in the face of enemies they have escaped with their lives, though some have been injured. They themselves are very modest and chary of describing what they have gone through. The last two returned to this country injured are Mr. Johnny Davies, eldest son of Captain and Mrs. Davies, Nathaniel House, and Mr. Johnny Evans, eldest son of the Rev. and Mrs J. C. Evans, Tremydon. Mr. Davies who was twice shot in the leg is now at home, and Mr Evans who was wounded in the chest is in hospital at Cardiff. and both are progressing favourably.
